Continuing Education Programme On Exploring Frontiers in Applied Linguistics (29 June-01 July 2020)

Description

Linguistics can be applied to a lot of situations in the real world. Theoretical linguistics concerns itself with an abstract understanding of how language functions: applied linguistics is about taking those insights and finding answers to the so what and now what questions. Two such emerging areas in applied linguistics oft discussed in academia are Forensic Linguistics/ Language Forensics and Language Education. Forensic Linguistics concerns the application of linguistic theories in crime and criminal settings with linguistic element as the fulcrum. With globalization, language and communication education have become much researched and taught topics in the classrooms.

Objectives and Outcomes

The objective of the course is to introduce and open new research avenues in related fields among scholars and academicians. The course will help the participants the vitality of language in crime detection and crime control motivating them to take up more studies in the crucial filed of Forensic Linguistics. The course also endeavors to bring forth new dimensions in language education which can benefit the participants in understanding the significance of ongoing researches in this area helping them to develop a positive outlook towards language
